

TURUKI TURUKI! PANEKE PANEKE!

24 May to 24 August 2008
Admission: $7 adults, $5 concessions,
free entry on Mondays

Public programme

Saturday 24 May

Hui

Central Library - free

Sunday 25 May 11am

Marilynn Webb

Marilynn Webb has been in the forefront of art education in New Zealand and was recently awarded the status of Emeritus Principal Lecturer, Otago Polytechnic School of Art, for her contribution to research and teaching at the institution. She has also been exhibiting her work nationally and internationally since the 1960s. Join Marilyn in the exhibition as she discusses the work by the five artists and their role in the development of art education in New Zealand.

New Gallery – exhibition entry charge

Sunday 25 May 1pm

Jonathan Mane-Wheoki

Director Art and Visual Culture the Museum of New Zealand Te Papa Tongarewa, Jonathan Mane-Wheoki (Ngapuhi) discusses the work by the five artists featured in the exhibition Turuki! Turuki! Paneke Paneke! and their place in the modernist art movement in New Zealand.

New Gallery – exhibition entry charge

QUEEN'S BIRTHDAY LONG WEEKEND

Sunday 1 June 1pm

Curator's Talk - Ngahiraka Mason

Join Indigenous curator, Māori art, Ngahiraka Mason on a tour of this exhibition that celebrates the 50th anniversary of the first exhibition of contemporary Māori art. The original show was curated by Māori mentor and educator, Matiu Te Hau, and presented at the Continuing Education rooms, University of Auckland.

New Gallery – exhibition entry charge

Sunday 8 June 3pm

Panel Discussion – the next generation

Sandy Adsett, Robert Jahnke, Emily Karaka, Donn Ratana, Kura Te Waru Rewiri

New Gallery – exhibition entry charge

A panel discussion of artists and art educators give their response to the artists involved in the first exhibition of contemporary Māori art in Auckland in 1958 and their influences.

Sunday 15 June 1pm

Alexa Johnston Modernism in Aotearoa

Writer, curator, arts commentator Alexa Johnston discusses the work by the five artists featured in the exhibition Turuki! Turuki! Paneke Paneke! and their place in the modernist art movement in New Zealand. Alexa Johnston was Principal Curator at Auckland Art Gallery and co curated the landmark 1950s Show.

New Gallery – exhibition entry charge

Sunday 6 July 1pm

Panel discussion – the contemporary generation

Brett Graham (Ngati Koroki Kahukura), Michael Parekowhai (Nga-Ariki, Te Aitanga-a-Mahaki, Rongowhakaata) Lisa Reihana (Nga Puhi: Ngati Hine & Ngai Tu)

Artists Brett Graham, Michael Parekowhai, and Lisa Reihana give their response to the first exhibition of contemporary Māori art in Auckland in 1958.

New Gallery – exhibition entry charge

Sunday 20 July 1pm

Panel discussion - The first generation (the students)

Elizabeth Ellis, Fred Graham, Mere Lodge, Selwyn Muru

A panel discussion by the students of the five artists featured in the exhibition.

New Gallery – exhibition entry charge

Sunday 27 July 3pm

Chris Bourke The 50s - Māori and the music

Writer, book and music reviewer and radio producer Chris Bourke discusses the place that urban Māori pop bands had in defining the music and times New Zealand music during the late 1950s. Chris has written and produced many radio documentaries on the country's musical history, as well as being arts and books editor of the NZ Listener and books editor of North & South. In 2006 Chris received a fellowship at New Zealand's National Library to research a history of early popular music in New Zealand and is currently Writer in Residence at Waikato University.

New Gallery – exhibition entry charge

Sunday 24 August 1pm

Curator's Talk - Ngahiraka Mason

Join Indigenous curator, Māori art, Ngahiraka Mason on a final tour of this exhibition that celebrates the 50th anniversary of the first exhibition of contemporary Māori art. The original show was curated by Māori mentor and educator, Matiu Te Hau, and presented at the Continuing Education rooms, University of Auckland.

New Gallery – exhibition entry charge